“Advanced Topics on Emotions and Happiness: Integrating Insights from affective science with art theory and practice”

In December 2018, Profs. June Gruber (University of Colorado) and Sabrina Marques (Western Connecticut State University) came to Brazil and taught the Advanced Topics in Emotions and Happiness course: Integrating Insights from Affective Science with Art Theory and Practice. Prof. Gruber and Marques are part of CAPES-PrInt team led by Professor Paulo Boggio. The course was offered to Masters, Doctoral and Postdoctoral students. It is central to the project developed within the Capes PrInt project, as it integrates the areas of Psychology, Arts and Neuroscience. As an example of this, some classes took place in open spaces (such as parks), others in typical classrooms, and finally in museums. In the class held at the Museum, pilots of experiments were also conducted to evaluate emotional responses and eye movements while observing works of art.
